

ENDODONTICS علاج الجذور

The general purpose of this course is to introduce the student to the various procedures and concepts used in clinical endodontics; this course examines specific treatment modalities and principles of endodontic therapy which will be incorporated into the students' clinical experience.

In the fifth year. Lectures are presented with stress to diagnosis and the integration of the biological aspects of endodontics into the clinical setting. Cases are treated clinically with the student demonstrating an acceptable level of mastery by the completion of the fifth year.

This course comprises one hour lecture and two hours of clinical sessions weekly.